When Division Avenue and MacArthur high schools' seniors left their school buildings in March, they never imagined it would be their last time walking out the doors. Senior year is a momentous time for any high school student, but amid a global pandemic, plans were halted and students received an unexpected ending to their high school careers. Through it all, the members of the Class of 2020 showed their resiliency and positivity. Building administrators and staff members banded together to give the soon-to-be graduates a proper celebration and the farewell that they deserved, with a virtual graduation ceremony on the district website and in-person ceremonies.

While following New York State COVID guidelines for in person gatherings, each high school held smaller commencement ceremonies on the field at Levittown Memorial Education Center on July 27 and 28. The traditional graduation space at Hofstra University's David S. Mack Sports and Exhibition Complex was swapped for a large white tent which was stationed on the grass for graduates and their family members. Although the seniors were unable to be with their full graduating class, the small, intimate ceremonies were a special way to celebrate the last four years of hard work and everlasting memories.

Central and building administrators, Board of Education members and high school faculty helped facilitate the ceremonies. Each graduate and their maximum of two guests sat together six feet apart from others to adhere to social distancing regulations. Words of encouragement and an abundance of praise were given to the graduates through speeches from building principals, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Tonie McDonald, valedictorians, salutatorians and class presidents. Dr. McDonald acknowledged the graduates who would be serving in the military and commemorated the Class of 2020 with a rock garden on the side of Levittown Memorial Education Center.

"There are two trees behind me, and they represent the graduating classes of Division and MacArthur," she said. "Over time, these trees' canopies will intermingle as a reminder of our shared experience."

Keeping with commencement traditions, the graduates were invited to walk across the platform as their names were announced. Family members, building principals, Dr. McDonald and Board of Education members applauded each student as they proudly strolled across the platform in their cap and gown. The proud graduates exited the field and walked to the rock garden. In placing their rocks with their names inscribed on them, the Class of 2020 left their imprint on the Levittown Public Schools forever.

Graduates Honored With Rock Garden

With an unexpected end to their senior year, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Tonie McDonald and central administrators sought to do something special to commemorate the Class of 2020. With the help of the district's grounds department, two trees were planted next to each other on the side of Levittown Memorial Education Center. The location was transformed into a rock garden where each 2020 high school graduate placed a rock with their name on it in the garden created for their school. In the fall, plants will be added, creating a lasting memory of the Class of 2020.
