Claims Audit Report

Seconded: Mr. Regan

NOTE: Mr. Pappas wanted to discuss the memo from AVZ, the Claims Auditor. He remarked that he had a problem with the wording of this memo and read some parts of it. He acknowledged that AVZ is going to make another category for an explanation as to why it is a confirming purchase order. Mr. Pappas stressed that purchase orders over 90 days, regardless of the reason, are still late. He noted it is the responsibility of the Business Office to address those purchase orders that are in question. He commented that the number of confirming purchase orders have come down but he feels that is because the Board has stayed on top of this issue. Mr. Flower showed some examples of why he disagreed with AVZ's findings. He challenged the criteria that the Claims Auditor uses. There was discussion on this issue. Mr. Porrazzo felt it was not necessary to get hung up on the number of exceptions as long as there is a valid business reason attached. He agreed that another category that states 90 days with an explanation, is necessary. Mr. Flower advised the Board that his office was working diligently to determine those explanations.

18. Ad Hoc –

Dr. Grossane reported that the Board has been asking if we can predict how well the students will do on the new assessment tests. He stated that the students are given intermediate assessments to determine how well they know the lessons taught. He remarked that a program called North West Evaluation Assessments (NWEA) is used in grades 4, 5, and 6. We are finding a sharp dip in the results for 6th grade. Dr. Grossane shared that part of the reason for this is that the older students know how the system works. They realize that as long as they get the answers correct, the test continues and the questions get harder. The teachers were reporting that the higher functioning students were purposely getting questions wrong so the test would stop. Mr. Powers reported

BOARD OF EDUCATION

LEVITTOWN, NY

DATE: April 10, 2013

REGULAR MEETING

that his son had figured out how to scale the NWEA test back. He wanted to know what NWEA was doing about this. Dr. Grossane shared that originally he was under the impression that these tests were going to be an approved method of helping the students become accustomed to automated testing and use as a measure for APPR. He now feels this may not be the way to go. Therefore, he will be looking at other methods, like STARS and the Envision Program. Dr. Grossane mentioned that every middle school in the state shows a dip for 7th and 8th grades. He reported that he was working with the Principals and Curriculum Associates to develop more of an interim assessment system that would give us a better guide to how students are doing.

Mr. Pappas asked if the NWEA is the interim Common Core Assessment. Dr. Grossane responded yes, but that there are other assessment tests given. Ms. Rifkin commented that we are challenged this year because we don't know what the test is going to look like. We have given the students the sample questions provided by New York State and NWEA. She feels that even though NWEA says it is Common Core aligned, it does not align to what New York State posted on their website, ENGAGE New York. Mr. Porrazzo stated the purpose of NWEA is to progressively have the student challenged, therefore, the initial questions may not be as difficult. Ms. Rifkin reported that the questions do not progress to the equivalent of the grade level.

Ms. Rifkin mentioned everyone was anxious to see what the tests look like and discussions have already started to develop interim assessments for next year. She was hoping to move forward with an ELA and Envision Program for next year so assessments can be built in. Dr. Grossane noted that he was looking to create more benchmarks. This year has been a transition year for everyone with the move to Common Core. He remarked that he was anticipating guidance from the state which they received with the modules in the upper grades but was waiting for advice for the primary grades. He shared that the test is very difficult to predict. Dr. Grossane was concerned with the Commissioner's comments that when other states implemented the Common Core, they saw a 20% - 30% dip in students' scores.

Mr. Pappas asked if we had any data that would support a conclusion stating that the students will do better and show growth. Ms. Rifkin reported that we can see if our students are growing, however, we do not know what is happening in the other districts. She commented that we are hoping to close the gap. Dr. Grossane stated we are looking for a 3% growth. Mr. Pappas remarked the surrounding districts are also trying to improve.

Mr. Porrazzo wanted to know if instead of benchmarking with a test that we don't know, is there any other way to see if a student is growing. What do we have that measures that? He is not concerned regarding a dip in scores, as long as all districts scores went down. Mr. Porrazzo expressed his feeling that it is our responsibility to motivate our students to want to take these tests and do well on them. Dr. Grossane agreed and remarked that we need to review the right data in order to move forward. Additionally, Mr. Porrazzo wanted to know if our teachers were collaborating more on tests and if our newly created Curriculum Associates were moving in the right direction. Dr. Grossane responded that they were definitely moving forward especially, with the Chemistry program. He noted he had several meetings with the Chemistry Department and Curriculum Associates to analyze data and discuss what needs to be done to help the students and teachers. The Curriculum Associates in turn have met with the teachers and Principals to realign the instruction accordingly. Coincidentally, Mr. Pappas asked how the Chemistry classes were doing. He was told that the midterms had been eliminated but the students were given a regular test. Ms. Rifkin stated that the third quarter test will be a common assessment. Dr. Grossane mentioned each teacher is able to see a student's progress through grades and tests.

Ms. Rifkin reported that she could provide good data from the READ 180 Program which charts student's growth. Additionally, teachers are administering classroom assessments and the report cards for grades two through five are based on Common Core. She noted that from the progression of the report cards, you can see whether students are meeting the standards that they did not meet before. Ms. Rifkin commented that benchmark assessments will be helpful for next year because you can compare across teachers and schools and conduct data meetings across the district on the same assessments. Ms. Marengi disagreed in that she felt the READ 180 data is not what we are looking for. She stated that data looks at a very small limited population. She would rather use the STARS Program. Ms. Marengi went on to discuss how to use this program to show student growth. She feels that the teacher is the motivating factor in a student's progress. It is in the presentation of the testing, to try to motivate the students to show growth. Mr. Powers wanted to know who does the statistical data analysis. Ms. Rifkin responded that she oversees the Principals who in turn work with the teachers. The Board went on to discuss the reporting of this data.

V. PUBLIC BE HEARD

PLEASE NOTE: COPIES OF ATTACHMENTS SUBMITTED ARE GIVEN TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION AND THEN KEPT WITH THE OFFICIAL MINUTES IN THE DISTRICT CLERK OFFICE.

The guidelines pertaining to Public Be Heard were read. Dr. Grossane and/or Board members will respond to questions, after the last speaker is heard.

Jane Finkelstein 848 Mayer Drive, Wantagh, NY

Ms. Finkelstein came to discuss the unprecedented situation going on in the country regarding the movement to opt out of state tests. She wanted to know how the district is going to handle the refusals. She understood about all the state mandates. She wanted the community to know the correct facts of the situation in order to move forward. Ms. Finkelstein feels that these are changing times but the picture is much bigger than just the tests. She wanted the community to know what is going on about the information given from the tests. Additionally, she asked, if it is a fact that the district will lose funding if you do not have the 95% participation rate or is there a waiver.

Tara Moore 4053 Briarwood Ave, Seaford, NY

Ms. Moore, an educator and a parent of two children in the district, thanked the Board for allowing her to speak. She commented that she is aligned with a growing number of parents in the district who are refusing to allow their children to participate in the state assessment exams. In researching this decision, she found that many teachers, parents, educational advocates and administrators feel these tests are flawed and do not have any meaningful purpose. Ms. Moore spoke about how she feels the school district does more to provide for students, especially those with special needs, than most other districts on Long Island. She is very disappointed that, upon presenting the information to the district that she is refusing to allow her daughter to take the exam, she was met with very little sympathy and understanding. Ms. Moore stated that even though she is acting on behalf of her child, she was told her child must verbally refuse to take the exam. Every day of testing, her daughter must look at her teacher, defy her authority and say no. In addition, she was told that no alternative activity will be provided for the children whose parents are refusing to allow them to take the exam. She does not see the educationally sound benefits to this course of action but feels it is cruel and developmentally inappropriate for the children. Ms. Moore feels the district is intent on punishing the children for the decision made by their parents. She would like the district to reconsider its position.

Tom Kohlman 806 Brent Drive, Wantagh, NY

Mr. Kohlman spoke about the Elementary Education position which he thought was filled in the fall of last year. He now sees a new post for the position under Director of Elementary Education with less requirements for the job, especially in the area of Common Core and APPR. He would like to see someone in the position with the best qualifications in these two areas. Mr. Kohlman remarked that he wants someone in place who can answer any and all questions that could arise so that they can bring Elementary Education to the next level.

RESPONSES:

In response to the concerns regarding the Assessment Tests:

Dr. Grossane reported that as the Superintendent of Schools, one of his priorities is to enact Commissioners Regulations. Therefore the tests must be given. He commented that it is a parents prerogative to do what they can, but he is not complacent in their choice. He understood that it is difficult for a child to defy a teacher, especially when it is the parent's decision. In relation to this, the district is reviewing its position and reexamining its decisions. Dr. Grossane noted that he has been conferring with other Superintendents to see their position. On the question on participation rate, although there is various information going around, he is under the assumption that if we do not meet our 95% participation rate, our Title I funding for remedial services could be affected. He noted that we hope to come to some kind of resolution before the test is given.

Ms. Marengi attended a workshop where it was reported that if schools do not meet their participation rate, then their Title I funding could be in jeopardy. Additionally, Ms. Marengi feels that you should use motivational theory when giving these tests. She remarked that the schools should celebrate that the students are well prepared and will do their best. Ms. Marengi stated these tactics could lower the child's anxiety and help them relax. She commented that there are ways to work within the system because we don't know what the penalties are going to be.

Mr. Cohen noted that the New York State School Boards sent out a guidance memo stating that both the United States Education Department and the State Education Department are informing districts that there is a potential to lose Title I funding if you do not have the 95% participation rate. He remarked that districts are in a difficult situation in that the federal and state government is telling them that they must administer these tests and there is no right to opt out. Their view is that these tests are part of the curriculum which are created by the state and not individuals. Mr. Cohen reported that the state is checking to make sure that schools are not complacent in this situation.

In response to the Mr. Kohlman's comments:

Dr. Grossane noted that he would get back to Mr. Kohlman on this matter. He explained that he will answer the question in public at the next meeting but would give Mr. Kohlman the answer before that.

Respectfully submitted,

Elizabeth Appelbaum,
District Clerk
